TASTE CAFÉ & MARKETPLACE

While I gave it a brief mention in a past issue as one of Indy's "Brunch-time" contenders, I now believe it is worth an entire issue dedicated to saying that. Taste Café is one of the best OVERALL restaurants in the city of Indianapolis. And for me, it is THE best. Here are a few reasons why:

Sandwich Euphoria...

I consumed a sandwich one recent afternoon that almost brought me to tears it was THAT good. I was alone, so no one can confirm the experience or my tears – kind of like scoring a hole-in-one when you're the only one on the golf course – but it happened. I was immediately gripped with the irrational fear, "What if my new favorite restaurant doesn't make it??? I'm in too deep now, I'd be devastated!" It was a daily special, and didn't have a name other than "World's most fabulous sandwich", which is the name I gave it. French bread with smoked ham, Portobello, organic greens, balsamic vinaigrette, and some other great stuff – I'm not even doing it justice. All the flavors and textures blended beautifully to create an amazing sandwich. That just doesn't happen often.

Pommes Frites...

Okay, so how big of a deal can French Fries be? Let me tell you, A BIG DEAL. Just the right crispness, and flavored with sea salt and cracked pepper, the fries are served with a basil aioli butter that is close to heaven on earth.

And for the Sweet Tooth...

As a teaser, many of the dessert options for the day are sitting next to the register where you place your order. Recent favorites have included: red velvet cupcakes with butter-cream icing, bread pudding & the signature chocolate pot de crèmes. The best so far though, was another special feature on a recent visit - A bittersweet chocolate mousse that was beyond description.

I've never felt such urgency to promote a restaurant to my friends before like I do with Taste Café. It's time for you to go and experience it for yourselves.
